Shanah Tova! Tonight marks the beginning of Rosh Hashanah, when Jewish people across the world mark the beginning of the New Year. While Rosh Hashanah is typically a religious holiday, Jews and non-Jews alike can share in the spirit of the “Days of Awe”. This is a time to reflect on our actions over the past year, and set intentions for the days and months ahead.

I feel very fortunate for the past year – it has been incredibly challenging at times, but together we have already accomplished so much. We’ve brought homeless men and women off the street and into housing, we’ve made communities more liveable by planting street trees and opening new bike and bus lanes, and we’ve made progress
